

August 14, 2016

A MATTER OF PERSPECTIVE

Bill Clary

A crow was sitting in a tree and noticed a swan in a beautiful lake nearby. When the swan exited the water the crow told him that he was so beautiful and white and how he wished he could be a swan.

The swan commented he thought he was the most beautiful bird until he saw a parrot and noticed that it had two beautiful colors. The crow wished he could have been a parrot.

The parrot stated he also thought he was the most beautiful bird on earth until he saw a peacock. All those beautiful colors on one bird. The crow now wished to be a peacock.

The peacock told the crow that he was indeed beautiful, but he was caged and wished he could be a crow and travel wherever he wanted.

The crow now realized how blessed his life was! Think on these things!

