BE ANGRY, AND YET DO NOT SIN

Bill Clary

Christians are often reminded that we are to be peaceable people and to "turn the other cheek" when confronted by enemies.

We are reminded that we serve a risen Savior and should follow His example and pray for our enemies. This is wise and correct advice. It does not mean we have no right to become angry, however.

Jesus was the perfect sacrifice. He had no sin, yet we see Him angry with the religious leaders of His time, overthrowing the tables of the moneychangers and angry about mistreatment of others. One can conclude that anger and sin are not synonymous.

Our lesson today deals with anger and the right and wrong kind and what we must do to make sure we do not "cross the line" with regard to this.

Remember uncontrolled anger becomes (d)anger!

Think on these things!
